BY GUS MALBERT.

Riding close to schedule, Ray Ryan blew into peaceful Richmond yesterday, while the Sabbath was yet young, and ere the day had passed into the shadows of all the days that have gone before had satisfied Secretary W. B. Bradley that he had made good use of the wintry days during which he was busily engaged in securing talent with which he hopes to recoup the baseball fortunes of Richmond during the good year 1914.

Ryan never looked better in his life. While still a young man, even the few years that he has been battling with the fates have dealt kindly with him. Not even when he was the windup for Danville away back in the days when he was greater spring to his step or more ruddy glow in his cheeks. He looks the typical athlete all the way, and it is not surprising that he has been able to secure good material in to be rewarded, then the Colts should be close to the top perch at the top of the list.

At the top of this column will be found the list of men from whom Ryan expects to select his winning team. Some of the names will be recognized as those of men who have already seen service at the Broad Street enclosure, but by far the greater number are strangers—all young men with reputations and many of more than ordinary ability as they will presently attempt to show.

"I haven't been angling for any flashy players," said Manager Ryan. "I've been looking for the fellows with solid reputation and experience, but still young enough to improve. I think I have been fairly successful, though you can never tell until you actually see them in uniform and find out exactly what they can do."

To Be Here Three Days. Ryan will be here three or four days conferring with the local owners. He may consummate several trades before he leaves. He is open for business propositions, but he is not going to get the worst of it if he can help it. On Tuesday contracts will be sent out to the men listed above. There is no danger of holdouts. All of the men have accepted terms and are anxious to try at least one season in the Virginia League.

This morning Secretary Bradley and Ryan will journey to the ball lot to look over the ground and determine upon the improvements necessary for the season. Naturally, Joe Hoagler will be in the party, giving his ideas as to what he thinks should be done, while at the same time listening to suggestions from the secretary and the manager. Following this, Ryan will be in the office of Secretary Bradley. By night it is hoped that the desk will be cleared of all business, such as completing the list of exhibition dates and examining the applications that have come from all quarters. "Federal League" or "no Federal League," said Ryan, "are finding a trouble getting men. Of course, once in a while we come across some youngster who is not quite as tractable as we would have liked, but I believe in the right kind usually brings him around. I have heard very little of the Federal League. In most of the sections I have traveled is discussed, by some seriously and by others as a huge joke. I am not worrying about anything, however, excepting trying to land a winning club in Richmond."

While in Cleveland, Ryan had quite a talk with E. S. Barnard, vice-president of the National League, and was very satisfied, and it is not improbable that one or two of the youngsters from the Ohio club will find themselves wearing Richmond "gray" before the season is over. Ryan will attempt an innovation during the coming season. He is laying his plans to get all of the major league teams at some time during the season to play exhibition games when they have open dates. Fans all know that each team in the major leagues has a series of exhibition games each year. Ryan's idea is to bring these teams to Richmond for games when they are laying off in the East.

VRGINIA BREAKS OFF WITH GEORGETOWN

All Athletic Relations Severed by Unanimous Vote of General Faculty Committee—No Confidence in Practicality and Efficiency of Requisite Reforms.

Charlottesville, Va., January 18.—The annual gridiron battle between Virginia and Georgetown today took place again. The faculty of the University of Virginia has stepped in and forbidden the students to make any more athletic contracts with Georgetown. This action was announced to-day by the faculty committee on athletics. Of course, it does not prevent the General Athletic Association from fulfilling existing contracts. Three baseball games have already been scheduled for this spring.

Resolutions setting forth the reasons why Virginia is breaking with Georgetown were unanimously adopted by the general faculty of Virginia on Thursday night, but the matter was not made public until to-day. A copy of these resolutions, accompanied by a letter from the Virginia faculty committee on athletics, was forwarded this morning to Father Francis X. Anglin, athletic director of Georgetown. In this letter the disputes and misunderstandings that have persisted between the two institutions for several years are reviewed, and reasons why Virginia has quit the Georgetown schedule are frankly discussed. The resolutions are as follows:

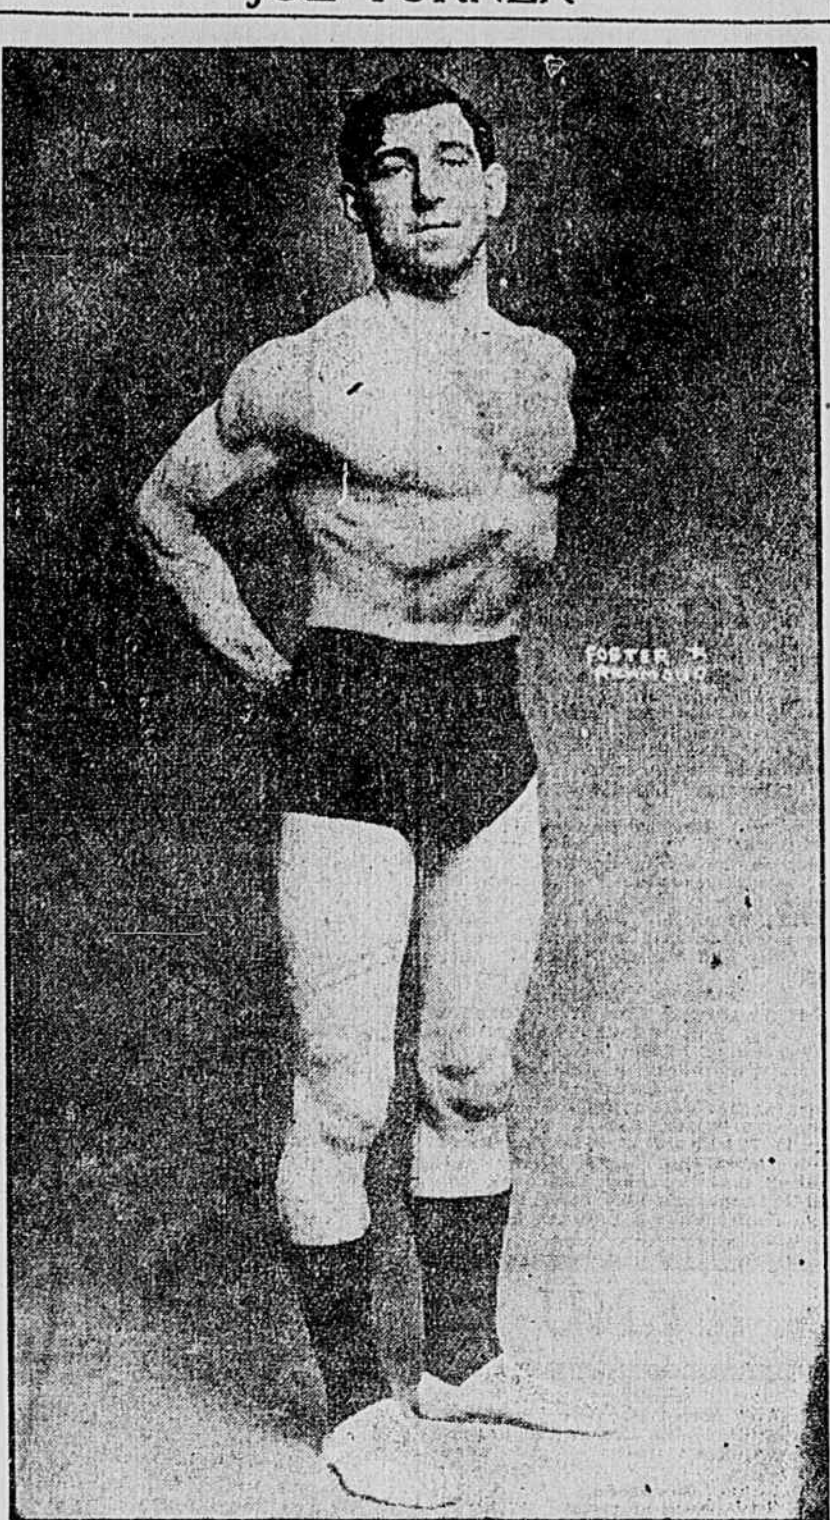

"Whereas the faculty committee on athletics at the University of Virginia

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

By Gus Malbert.

It was something like real sport to welcome Ray Ryan when he came into the shop. There is something infectious about Ryan. He doesn't say much, but what he does say carries a punch all its own. He tells you he's going to have a winner and makes you believe it, which at this time of year is decidedly encouraging.

His list of hopefuls or near-hopefuls looks formidable enough. He is a pitcher, a big left-hander, and a fast ball pitcher. He is a big fellow, and a left-hander in the twirling department for four seasons, unless Bill Laval, who came to the rescue several times last season from his right hand, be counted in the southpaw brigade.

Ryan contemplates using Doc Newton at second instead of the new shortstop. He believes that Doc will be of greater help to the club and will have an opportunity to show to better advantage around the keystone station than anywhere else. In addition, Newton will serve as a balance to some youngster who is to land the shortstop berth.

Ryan's plan to get the major league clubs to show him they are hungry for talent in the East, will have a pleasing result to the fans who have been looking at the big fellows excepting in the exhibition games. If he can go through with his idea he will not only make money for the club, but will win his way straight into the appreciation of the public.

Contracts will go out to the men to-morrow. They are to report not later

With the Palace Bowlers

By R. N. (JAKE) ROWSEY.

In the small maples, the Journal still leads the league, with the Palace team not very far behind, and it is expected that there will be a close race between these two teams.

Last Monday night the Journal won two out of three games from the Times-Dispatch boys.

Jordan, of the Journal team, carried all honors last Wednesday night, with 115 high game, while Tucker was a close second.

The games this week in the Palace National Ducky League will be to-morrow night, Palace vs. The Times-Dispatch, and Wednesday night, the Journal and Richmond Lunch teams will battle for honors.

To-morrow night, starting at 8 o'clock, another two-man team match will be pulled off on the Palace alleys. The match will be an exhibition between Whitman and Ellis, and Wade and Arrighi. There will be eight games in all. The series consisted of three games, of which the other seven games were rolled on the Newport alleys last Thursday afternoon. Ellis and Whitman carried the majority of the first half of the series by 120 pins. It is Lexington, Va., January 18.—V. M.
